SCHOOL STUDY COURSE BOARD MEETS AUG. 7

It is not now likely that any radical changes will be made in the course of study now in use by the public schools of the territory, according to Henry W. Kinney, superintendent of public instruction. A meeting of the committee on course of study will be held at 10 o'clock Monday morning, August 7, in the office of the department, at which time such provisions and alterations as may appear beneficial will be made.

"There probably will be no drastic changes," says Kinney, "as, in the opinion of the teachers, the course is entirely satisfactory. One change may be with regard to arithmetic courses for the first and fourth grades."

The members of the committee are Superintendent Kinney, Inspector G. S. Raymond, J. C. Davis, Eugene Horner, C. O. Smith and W. C. Avery. All are now in the city with the exception of Avery, who will come over from Kauai for the meeting.

SIGNED REPORT NOT TURNED IN; WILL FILE BILLS

Because Chairman Francis B. Smith of the special committee of engineers appointed to determine the stability of the reservoir No. 4 dam in Nuuanu valley, has not turned in a signed copy of the report, the Oahu Loan Fund Commission could not meet this afternoon to consider the document.

It is probable the report will be signed by all the committee members in time for the commission to meet Thursday. If any bills for their professional services in making the report are presented by the five engineers on the committee, they will be filed and no action taken until the return of Chairman Charles R. Forbes from the mainland in about a month.

GROUND OF FAILURE TO PROVIDE GETS DIVORCE FOR MRS. D. P. ISENBERG

Divorce was granted by Circuit Judge Whitney today to Annie Bearice Isenberg from Daniel Paul Rice Isenberg, the former alleging non-support. No order regarding alimony was made by the court, it being intimated at the close of the hearing that arrangements in this matter have been perfected outside of court.

Mrs. Isenberg states in her petition that the couple were married on Kauai in 1891 and that they last lived together as husband and wife in Honolulu. She alleged that Isenberg failed to provide suitable maintenance for her during a period of last February up until the filing of the divorce suit on June 15, 1916.

AN OLD PROVERB

It used to be proverbial that every man (and it is certainly no less true of woman) is either a fool or a physician at forty. This means that every intelligent person must learn so much about caring for his own health that by the time he is forty years of age he can almost be reckoned as a physician.

Why, then, is there so much talk by doctors against "self-medication"? A woman can recognize all ordinary ailments without calling on a doctor. If they are ailments distinctive to her sex she generally knows enough to use that greatest of all remedies for such ailments, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and likewise she is familiar with the standard remedies for other diseases.—Adv.

ARLEIGH DIVORCE IS GRANTED BY WHITNEY

On the ground of desertion Circuit Judge Whitney today granted to A. B. Arleigh a divorce from Mabel W. Arleigh, the latter now being a resident of the mainland. The Arleighs were married in Chicago, Ill., in 1911.

JACK LONDON IS OFF TO MAINLAND ON MATSONIA

Writer Pleased to Leave Since It Means He Will Sooner Return

HAWAII'S PERFECT TRIBUTE.
"The older I get the oftener I come back and the longer I stay."
Jack London's oft-repeated quotation, which is becoming a Honolulu slogan. London says just as is the way every one should feel.

Jack London has the best reason yet offered for leaving Honolulu Wednesday in the Matsonia; also he has a new role: He's a yard boy, or something like that.

The first statement is sentiment; the second, humor—if they were written as they really are.

"I'm glad I'm going away Wednesday," London remarked with just a trace of a twinkle, "for the sooner I go, the sooner I come back."

The yard boy story is different. While London was telling the Star-Bulletin man how the islands had the death grip upon him, and lots of other things, too, there came a little rattle at the door, a tiny, timid knock.

"Pardon," says London, "I'll just see who this is knocking at my door."

The writer had on a Japanese kimono that might have been the yard boy's bride.

"Howdy," said London to the gentle rattle at the door.

There was a little woman with an autograph book in her hand. Her embarrassment was real.

"Will it be too much trouble to carry this to Mr. London," piped a stifled voice way down in a frightened young woman's throat. She apparently wanted to fly away.

"No trouble at all," boomed London, smiling down at her. "I'm it."

There was a faint gurgle as of someone fainting away. Then—
"Oh, I'm so delighted. Oh, will you please give me your name; is it asking too much?"

"Not at all, not at all. Have a chair." And before the excited visitor realized that she had met Jack London—and she had come all the way from England to do it, she said—she was out in the bright afternoon sun, speeding into the hazy tree shade, the book tightly clutched and London smiling at her.

"Though I was the yard-boy, God bless her, and I hardly blame her either, for I certainly look worse than that. And she's left her fountain pen," he said, "I certainly am doing well this afternoon."

London says similar visits are quite common but that his system usually excludes everybody until the afternoon. No one can bother him while he works, which is usually all morning.

"When you are breaking up house-keeping and about to take to the sea, your system naturally falls by the way, temporarily," he laughed, "but even on my ranch in California I see no one, no matter who he or she may be, until 12:30, when my morning's work is finished."

London has nothing new to say about the islands, and his only "aloha" are those he has expressed that he will eventually make the islands his home. "Just because Mrs. London and I like the beautiful of life and will live where we like the country and people, which is right here."

The novelist and his wife are leaving at this time to be present at the annual outdoor pageant of the Bohemian Club of San Francisco at Bohemian Grove, the summer camp in Sonoma county. It is here that hundreds of celebrities from all over the world gather in the mountain fastness for a few days each year as guests of the club to enjoy the largest and most attractive outdoor spectacle ever staged. The show costs thousands of dollars, has an orchestra alone of 100 pieces, is given for only one night and is written, prepared and acted by the members of the Bohemian Club, the fame of which extends around the world.

London plans to go East for the world series in the autumn and will return here in the winter or early spring. He will write all the time.

"I have enough notes, ideas and sketches for short stories and novels stored away to keep me writing for 10 years," is one of Jack London's interesting statements, and another is that if he spent the remainder of his life working he couldn't write even a small portion of the articles, stories and so forth that he has been asked to donate to various publications and organizations gratis.

About the Molokai incorporation and the $300,000 building which London has charged is lying idle and useless, the writer has nothing more to say.

A report that he was going to stop writing in 1915 was told London.

"I only wish that I could. The romance of the work has gone. It's just work to me. But it's mighty lucrative work. So I'll keep pecking along."

The Angkor has been produced during the last twelve years nearly 20,000, 000,000 copies, and the product has been increasing since that time.

GOVERNOR SIGNS COMMISSIONS OF ISLAND BODIES

Following the receipt of a radio message this morning from the supervisors of the County of Hawaii, recommending the reappointment of George H. Vicars as Hawaii member of the Promotion Committee, Governor Lucius E. Pinkham today signed Vicars' commission for one year.

The governor also reappointed W. H. Rice, Jr., as Kauai representative on the committee, the Kauai supervisors having already recommended his reappointment. No word from Maui or Oahu has yet been received. The commission of George H. Asaga, Oahu representative, expires Friday.

Rice's appointment is to succeed Cyril Smith, appointed some months ago to fill out the unexpired term of D. P. R. Isenberg, Kauai representative, who resigned some time back.

The governor signed several other appointments today, appointees to succeed themselves, as follows:

J. H. Moragne, appointed to succeed himself on the Industrial accident board of Kauai for a one-year term.

J. Frank Woods, appointed to the same board of Hawaii for a one-year term.

W. H. Field, appointed on the Industrial accident board of Maui.

C. H. Olson of Honolulu for a three-year term on the commission to promote uniformity of legislation in the United States. Olson is an attorney, member of the law firm of Holmes & Olson.

SOUTH SEA ISLANDERS MAY VISIT JAPAN

(Special Cable to Nippon Jiji)
TOKIO, Japan, July 25.—Arrangements for the visit to Japan of hundreds of natives of the Marshall Islands, as well as men and women from Yap and Marja next year, are already under way, according to a recent official announcement. Efforts are being made to bring the islands captured by the Japanese navy from the Germans into closer touch with the people and government of Japan, and to establish a more thorough understanding.

DON'T

Do you feel you'd like to quit?
Don't!
Get to feeling you don't fit?
Do you want to yell "All in!"
Cause your wind's a little thin?
And you think you'll never win?
Don't!

There's a kick you want to make?
Don't!
There's a head you want to break?
Don't!

Do you feel you want to whine
Like a genuine canine
And send blue streaks down the line?
Don't!

When you see a chance to duck.
Don't!
When you want to chuck your luck.
Don't!

Keep right on without a stop,
And you'll sure show up on top
If just when you want to flop
You don't.
—Unknown.

Improved Appetite

usually follows the use of Grape-Nuts
for breakfast.

This food comes to you in the form of crisp, nut-like granules with the whole wheat and malted barley.

Served with a little cream or good milk, and a sprinkling of sugar, if desired, Grape-Nuts is a delicious food with just enough "chewiness" to win the appetite and start digestion.
